Brown Butter Chocolate Chip Pumpkin Bread

This is the pumpkin bread you are going to want to make on repeat all season long. This Brown Butter Chocolate Chip Pumpkin Bread is soft and perfectly tender in the middle with a beautifully golden and slightly crisp exterior. The brown butter adds a warm nutty depth that pairs so beautifully with the cozy spiced pumpkin flavor running through every single slice, then melty chocolate chips are studded throughout so you get little pockets of rich chocolate in every bite. Serve it warm with a pat of butter, a sprinkle of flaky sea salt, and a hot cup of coffee.

Ingredients

Brown Butter Chocolate Chip Pumpkin Bread:

- 2 cups (260g) all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp (6g) baking soda
- 3/4 tsp (3g) baking powder
- 1 tsp (2g) pumpkin pie spice
- 1 tsp (2g) cinnamon
- 1/2 tsp (2g) salt
- 1/2 cup (113g) salted butter
- 3/4 cup (150g) granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup (120g) brown sugar, light or dark
- 1, 15oz can pumpkin puree
- 1/4 cup (60ml) milk of choice, at room temperature
- 2 eggs, at room temperature
- 1 tsp (4g) vanilla bean paste or extract
- 1 cup (200g) chocolate chips of choice, plus more for topping (I use semi-sweet chocolate chips in the loaf, then mini semi-sweet chocolate chips for topping)
- Optional: 2-3 thin strips of cold butter for placing on top of the batter before baking (see instructions below)

Instructions

Preheat the oven and prepare the pan:

1. Preheat the oven to 350F. Grease and line a standard (9x5”) loaf pan with parchment paper so there is some hanging over the sides. Set aside.

Brown the butter:

1. Add the 1/2 cup (113g) of butter to a saucepan over medium-high heat. Allow to melt and brown, while stirring continuously (~5-8 minutes). As the butter continues to cook, you’ll notice that it starts to foam up across the surface (after about 2 minutes). Continue cooking, stirring with a spatula, until the milk solids begin to brown (the brown specks at the bottom of the pan) and the color starts to deepen. Once the brown butter reaches a deep golden amber color, the foam has subsided, and smells nutty, remove from the heat and immediately pour into a large bowl. Set aside to cool slightly (about 15-20 minutes), enough so it doesn’t melt the sugars when added.

Continue the pumpkin batter:

1. In a medium bowl, whisk together flour, baking soda, baking powder, pumpkin pie spice, cinnamon, and salt.
2. Once the brown butter has slightly cooled, add both sugars, the pumpkin puree, and milk. Whisk well to combine.
3. Then add the eggs and vanilla, and whisk until fully incorporated and smooth.
4. Add the dry ingredient mixture to the wet. Use a wooden spoon or spatula to fold until just combined and there are no flour streaks remaining, being careful not to over-mix (it’s okay if the batter is a little lumpy). Then fold in the chocolate chips.

Assemble, bake, and serve:

1. Scoop or pour the batter into the prepared loaf pan and spread into an even layer. Then if desired, take 2-3 thin strips of cold butter and place them in the middle, down the center of the batter. This will help create that ‘perfect’ classic crack while baking! Sprinkle more chocolate chips on top of the batter if desired.
2. Bake at 350F for 75-85 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted into the middle comes out clean or with moist crumbs (the internal temperature should be 190F-200F). Check the loaf at 50 minutes. If the top is starting to darken too quickly, tent with foil for the remaining time.
3. Remove the loaf from the oven and allow to cool for at least 10-15 minutes. Then remove from the pan and allow to cool until just warm or completely.
4. Slice and serve warm with butter and a sprinkle of flaky sea salt, if desired.
5. Enjoy!
