

ROASTED BANANA ICE CREAM

Makes about 1 quart (1l)

You never know which of your recipes is going to be the one that especially stands out in a cookbook. I didn't know either, until a reader noted that a recipe uncannily similar to this one won a $100,000 grand prize in a magazine cooking contest. I didn't know an ice cream recipe could be worth a hundred thousand dollars. But sure enough, there it was.

Fortunately, you don't have to pay that much to have the recipe. You've already got this book, so for the price of some bananas and a few other groceries, you can have the six-figure goodness without breaking the bank.

1. Preheat the oven to 400°F (200°C).
2. Slice the bananas into 1/2-inch (12mm) pieces and toss them with the brown sugar and butter in a 2-quart (2l) baking dish. Bake for 40 minutes, stirring just once, until the bananas are browned and cooked through.
3. Scrape the bananas and the thick syrup in the baking dish into a blender or food processor. Add the milk, granulated sugar, vanilla, lemon juice, and salt and puree until smooth.
4. Chill the mixture thoroughly in the refrigerator, then freeze it in your ice cream maker according to the manufacturer's instructions. If the chilled mixture is too thick to pour into your machine, whisking will thin it out.

3 medium ripe bananas, peeled

1/3 cup (60g) packed light brown sugar

1 tablespoon butter,
salted or unsalted, cut into small pieces

1 1/2 cups (375ml) whole milk

2 tablespoons granulated sugar

1/2 teaspoon pure vanilla
extract

1 1/2 teaspoons freshly squeezed lemon juice

1/4 teaspoon kosher or sea salt
